Common Questions About Skating

What age is too young for skating lessons?

We recommend that kids be at least 4 or 5 years of age for group class. It is also recommended that you take your child to a public skate first to see if they are really interested in skating.

Is this only for young girls interested in figure skating?

Absolutely not! That is the biggest misconception that we have with our program. It is open to Hockey players and Figure Skaters alike. There is even an adult program so people at any age can learn to skate. There are still adult skaters competing well into their 80's, so there is no such thing as too old! Many NHL players started out with lessons in the USFSA basic skills program. They develop their skating skills first, then implement the stick later without having to use it for support. This program produces better overall skaters in the long run, because they have a solid foundation to build on with their skating skills.

What about Skates?

At Arrington Ice Arena we have skates available in sizes youth 9 thru adult men size 13 for rent. With the basic skills classes the skate rental fee is included in your registration. If you have your own, figure skates, hockey skates and plastic skates are accepted. Double runners are NOT accepted.

Can my son or daughter use one of those pushy things?

Yes they are available but we only allow very young/ new skaters to use them. HOWEVER, they are highly discouraged!
